It may be argued that we can get on with-

His Lordskip in delivering judgment in the suit said this was a claim for $990 under a clause of a separation deed dated the 19th July. 188 The clause stated that J. J. McBresn would during the term of the lives of himself and his wit Jane Frances McBroon, or so long as they live apart; pay to Mr. Ost as trustee, so long as hi wife lived a chaste life, the sum of $15 per mont for the following six months after eiging the deed and $20 per month after the The British gunboat Rattler, Commander piration of those six months. After that he paid To-day being the Birthday of Her Majesty nothing more and it was to rocover what was due that this action was brought. The defence was really separated into different parts: the firs concealment or misreo esentation of fasta ti knowledge of which would have prov nted defendant signing the deed; second, adultery on the part of the wife subsequent to the date of the deed. He would take the charge of misrepresen tation first. The effect of this was that the wife

If nine months was reckoned bec from March, 1885 it brought us to the beginnin of July 18-4. The defendant denied at that period having any connection with his wife and stated that the child was not his, and that his wife must have committed adultery before the signing of the dead. The wife on the other hand stated that on the 18th July, she had an interview with her kusband, and that the result of that interflag will call alongside any vessel hoisting code view was the child in question. These were two diametrically opposite statements, and they stood by themselves. He (his lordship) was asked say by the defence, on the strength of the busband's statement, that the wife committed adul tery. Hongkong, 23rd May, 1889. WEATHER FORECASTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." SIB,-If your correspondents "Barometer" and "Thermometer" were the chief officers of steamers they would growl a good deal more than they have done about that expensive luxury the so-called Observatory. Perhaps you are not aware that all vessels have to send their logs to the learned Astronomer, which is hard enough considering the rush and hurry the whole time a vessel is in port now-a days, but is much worse when we fail to find any result therefrom. There is a big enough staff connected with the white elephant (for it seems to me that so far as Hongkong is concerned the Observatory is nothing else); why is not one of them deputed to call on board each vessel and take the extracts required? "Thermometer" asks a lot of questions. I would ask one. Why i the Observatory continued at all if it does fulfil the purpose for which it was intended? have heard scores who say it does not but not one who says it does. It costs very large sum for a small place like Hong kong, for I understand there is no special levy on the ships for its upkeep, although it was almost entirely for their benefit that was founded. The learned observer lately got an addition to his salary and an addition to staff. The fact seems to be that the learned Doctor is more of an astronomer than meteorologist. I am told, with what truth cf course I know not that he does not make his appearance till about noon and as between that hat hour and four o'clock, when the office closes, he has to go up again for tiffin there is not much time left. But one cannot expect a man to work night and day as wel and if the learned scientist is engaged till two in the morning observing the transit of Venue or admiring some bright particular star he cannot be fit for meteorological work in the early part of the day. But the conjunction of Venus and Mars and matters of such high standing is not what we want observed; we want weather forecasts and correct daily Meteorological Reports made up also weekly and monthly, and scientific deductions therefrom. In fact we want what we had before from the Civil Hospital, the Harbour Master, and Mesers. Falconer & Co., but on a thoroughly reliable hasis. May I ask why this Observatory is not worked in conjunction with those of the Jesuits at Shanghai and Manila and the Chinese Customs say again that if the Observatory does not fulfil the medial purpose for which Hongkong requires it, let it be abolished and save

FOOCHOW GENERAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The following is the annual report of the Committee for the year 1888-89:-- plore the steady decline which is taking place in the volume of the tea trade of this port. During the last two years the export of Congou to the United King dom his fallen off to the extent of over twenty-three million pounds, or say 45 per cent., and it seems pretty certain that a still further reduction will have to faced. This decline is no doubt partly due to the competition of India and Ceylon, but it is also due to the deterioration in the general quality of the teas offered here, and to the comparatively high mices which they fotch, whereby they are being driven out of consumption. To other countries than the United slight tendency to increase. The report of the Inspector General of the Imperio
